Rationale for sequence: The students begin to learn about the Constitution first as this is the foundation of UK Government and all following Government topics link back to the support and constraints of the constitution. The students are taught the concepts of authority, power and sovereignty. In UK Government students are taught to make synoptic links to UK Politics.	Rationale for sequence: In the previous units, students learnt about the foundation of the UK political system and how parliament is sovereign. In this unit they will examine the role and power of the Prime Minister an executive in parliament. They will also study about the Judiciary and how it functions with the executive and parliament. This unit will link to electoral systems and political parties as they will see how manifestos and electoral results can affect mandates. In UK Government students are taught to make synoptic links to UK Politics.	Rationale for sequence: UK Politics (paper 1) builds the foundation of paper 1 and students start to enquire into how democracy can be improved to ensure high voter turnout and engagement from the electorate	Rationale for sequence: In the previous unit the students learnt about voter turnout and participation, so this unit builds on this knowledge by looking at the mechanisms of how elections work. This is a challenging unit as students need some mathematical understanding to examine representation and effectiveness as we use terms such as majority. The unit links to UK Govt relations between branches as we look at electoral systems in other nations of the UK. The final unit is an examination of political parties. This has been placed as the final AS	Rationale for sequence: Liberalism-This unit is conceptually easier to understand than the other ideologies units so it is a useful starting point. The ideas of liberalism will seem familiar to the students as we will have discussed these in the UK constitution and political parties. Some of the key thinkers may have been learnt by students in other subjects such as History and Economics. Students must make links between the core ideologies and the theories in Global Politics. Rationale for sequence: Teacher 2: This unit links well with the Liberalism unit for ideologies. It gives them a foundation of understanding of liberal ideas and also chronology as many students do not do History A Level. This helps to bridge the gap in AO1.

			unit as it links closely with the Yr 13 Ideologies unit which will require students to have an understanding of what core ideologies influence a party.

Reading / literacy:

Students provided with course textbooks and revision guides which are used in all lessons as the 'core' reading

Students provided with 'Politics Review' articles to support study.

Numeracy: Role of majorities, minority governments, coalitions on the success of governments and the ability of Parliament to hold government to account.	Numeracy: Students learn the relative importance of majorities, approval ratings and their impact on success and leadership style of PMs	Numeracy: Students analyse turnout of recent elections and relative importance.	Numeracy: Students learn how different electoral systems work and how outcomes would differ under alternatives to the FPTP systems.	Numeracy: Students will need to have a good grasp of chronology in both the ideology and Global Politics units. They will need to be able to compare different time periods and understand why ideologies change in relation to changing global events.
